Website Development

Website development is the process of creating websites or web applications that are accessible over the internet. It includes designing, coding, and setting up both the front end (user interface) and back end (server, database, and application logic) to deliver a functional, responsive, and engaging experience to users. This often involves a combination of HTML, CSS, JavaScript, and frameworks or content management systems like Django, or Laravel.

Static Website development

A static website displays fixed content that doesn't change based on user interactions. It's pre-built with HTML, CSS, and sometimes JavaScript, making it simple, fast, and suitable for basic informational sites.

Dynamic website Development

Dynamic website development creates websites with interactive and changeable content based on user input, server processing, and database data. This allows for personalized experiences and real-time updates, common in applications like social media platforms, online stores, and news sites.

SEO Development

SEO (Search Engine Optimization) development focuses on improving a website's visibility on search engines like Google. By optimizing content, keywords, site structure, and technical elements, SEO makes it easier for search engines to understand and rank the site. This drives organic traffic by helping the website appear higher in search results.
